The extraordinary excitment produced by the arrest and imprisonment of

The extrordinary exettement produced by the arrest and imprisonment of PASSMORE WILLIAMSON has urdoubtedly had its influence in creating the unprecedented demand for this alie work, but its unequaled merit and marked ability will mark it beyond doubt the most extractive nook yet wateriak on the stablect.

It possesses this great advantage over all its competitors that its delineations are accurately true to fact and nature in Southern Life. There is no minerag of matters. The book contains not only the truth, and nothing but the truth, but it contains also what no other book upon the subject has yet portrayed, that is, this whole truth.

The menoscript has been submitted to several distinguished literary gentiemen, who have all characterized it as being ablet, more giaphic, and unce artistically written than any other work which has yet preceded it on the subject. Says one: "There are scenes in it superior in dramathe power to the best contained in 'Uncle Tom's Chain.'" Says another: "The plot is far superior to and the writing much more vigorous than that in Ida May." A third adds: "It is a bod and powerful work, and evidently the preduction of a writer of great talent."

"To those familiar with the writings of Mrs. Southworth, the announcement that a new work by her has just appeared will be n unerring indication that another gem has been added to the treasury of American literature. In 'The Deserted Wife,' the last and hest work of this gifted authoress, we have a book, the subject or 'motive' of which alone should, apart from its admirable artistic execution and its deeply thrilling interest, attract the most extended attention and study. As regards 'The De serted Wife,' we can only say that it more than fulfiles the high-est pron ise of its publisher, being, in the truest sense of the word, beautifully and powerfully written, and endewed with that absorbing interest which adapts itself to every tasts. We predict that it will be productive of an incalculable amount of

REPORTS AND PUBLIC LETTERS.

Calborn, Clay and Webster are three names which will long be verezated by American clinicas. Of the three, Calborn, Clay in the sale part of his life, was perhaps the greatest favorite of he people. His bighly curivated mind, profound views of government and his pure character, gave great weight sand importance to his opinion a to all parties. Of the writings and speeches of American statesment there are extractly any which hear of directly upon the great measures adopted by our Government, during the last forty years as these of the lamented Cabborn. The War the Revenue Spacen, the Currency, and States' Rights, were subjects upon which he took a leading perisition and greatly sided the decisions which were mid-de on them. With those who take an interest in our national history to value or the writings of our public men cannot be
